

True North

The True Northerner, A WEEKLY JOURNAL.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING.
By T. R. HARRISON.

One Dollar per year in Advance.
One Dollar and fifty cents if not paid in six months.

JOB WORK.

Plain, Fancy, Ornamental, (in colors or not), executed with neatness and dispatch, at this office.

VAN BUREN COUNTY OFFICERS.

S. H. BLACKMAN,
Register, of Deeds, Attorney at Law, and Notary Public; will attend to the business of Conveyancing, drawing agreements, applications for county lands, wills, &c.—the purchase and sale of real estate, pay out of taxes, estimation of titles and the compromised of conflicting titles, &c. Office in the Court House. 6 ly

A. W. NASH,
Judge of Probate, and Notary Public. Van Buren Co.—Conveying titles, drawing agreements, pertaining to land and other property attended to. Will also attend to the purchase and sale of Real Estate, Examining Titles, paying Taxes, procuring Bounty Land Warrants, &c. Office in the Court House, 2d door on the right. 94.

CHANDLER RICHARDS,
Attorney, Solicitor and Counselor at Law. Prosecuting Attorney for the County of Van Buren.
Bounty Land and Pension Agent. Contracts drawn, and collecting promptly attended to.
Office in the Court House. 14-15.
Paw Paw, Michigan.

J. M. RIDOLIN,
County Treasurer, Van Buren County, Notary Public, will attend to the purchase and sale of Real Estate, examining titles, paying Taxes, procuring Bounty Land Warrants, &c. Office in the Court House. 4-13.

BUSINESS CARDS.

T. R. HARRISON,
Plain, Fancy, Job, News and Ornamental Printer, Handbills, Posters, Cards, Ball Tickets, &c., rapidly and quickly executed with neatness and dispatch.
All orders respectively solicited. Prices moderate—NORTHERNER OFFICE—north side of main street, Paw Paw.

E. SMITH & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods, Ready Made Clothing, Boots & Shoes, Groceries, &c. Av. Long Brick Store Owner of Main and Kalamazoo Sts., Paw Paw, Michigan. 131.

MELODIANS,
The cheapest Music. Mason & Hamlin, and Daines & Co.'s have exclusive patent, are represented.
Bank, Randall, Lawrence, Agent can obtain full warrant for durability, at Factory price; video loud or soft & true in the equal temperament.
Lawrence, Nov. 1, 1857. 130 m.

HENRY LUCAS, Manufacturer of and dealer in Wines, Cottages and earliest chairs. Turning, repairing, &c., execute in short notice. Some time for a few and respectively made. Shop opposite the Methodist Church, at the new cabin, above Paw Paw, July 30, 1857. 130 m.

HENRY SPERNE,
Dealer in Ready-Made Cleaning Habs. Cars, Values and Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods, which will be sold to suit customers.
First Door East of Israel's Fancy Store, Kalamazoo, Mich.

O. F. GORTON,
Dealer in Clocks, Glass and China ware, Paper Hangings, Window Shabs and Curtains, Tailoring, Jewelry, Yankee Notions, Stone and Facer Ware, &c., South side of Main St., just door west of E. Smith & Co. 147-15.

DENTISTRY.

Dr. W. Brown can be found at all times at his rooms over Lemon, Warren and Co.'s Store, and is prepared to execute elegantly and well all kinds of work in the line of his profession.— Teeth extracted, filled with gold or silver and new ones inserted, singly or in sets, upon the most improved principles of art. 147.

AMBROTYPE.

In the most superb and life-like manner, and put up in superior

STYLE AND FINISH.

Ladies' and Gentlemen are invited to call at his office and Gallery and examine for themselves.
Charged in accordance with the time.

Paw Paw, Mich. 147-15. W. Brown.

C. M. ODELL, M.D.

Homoeopathic Physician, Surgeon, &c., and Obstetrician. Also dealer in Books and Stationery.
He may at all times be found at his Residence on the corner of Niles & Paw Paw Sts., directly south of Clus. Schellack's.

M. P. ALLEN,

Manufacturer of and dealer in all kinds of Cabinet Ware, consisting in part of Bureaus, Tables, Bedsteads, Lounges, Toilet, Washing and Light Stands, &c., &c. Coffins made to order. Workrooms opposite the M. E. Church, Main St. 147.

A. BINGS & CO.

Proprietor Paw Paw Livery Stable. Horses and Carriages at all times to let. Passengers conveyed to any part of the country with comfort.

Warehouses, one door north of the Red Blacksmith's shop. 147-15. Paw Paw, Mich.

BENJAMIN SIMMONS,

Clock and Watch maker, and Jeweler. Mattawan, Michigan. Repairing done in the best manner and on reasonable terms. 130-14.

E. G. BUTLER & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail dealers in American, English and German Hardware also Iron, Nails and Glass; Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Tim, Copper and Sheet Iron Ware. Those wishing to trade will please give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. 130. Paw Paw, Mich.

S. C. GRIMER,

Dealer in Groceries and Provisions, Fish, Fruits, Nuts, Palms, Oils, Yankees Notions, Woods, Willow and Stone Ware, Confidential Cigars, Drugs and Medicines, Books and Stationery, pure Liquors for Medicinal and Mechanical purposes etc., etc. 147-15. Paw Paw, Mich.

W. R. LAWKINS,

Dealer in Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Ready-Made Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, &c. Store, south side Main street. 4-15.

DRS. ANDREWS & WOODMAN,

Have formed a copartnership for the practice of Medicine and Surgery. All calls promptly attended to day and night.

True Northerner.

VOL. III. NO. 47.

PAW PAW, MICH., FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1858.

WHOLE NO. 151

PAW PAW, MICH., FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1858.

WHOLE NO. 151

Breach of Promise.

BY A RETIRED PHYSICIAN.

"Is it possible!" Rose Leavitt<sup>22</sup> exclaimed I, as I saw a lady whom I recognized as one of the beautiful heiresses of Boston, enter my office.

"I dare say you are surprised; but my business is of a strictly legal character; so you need not waste examinations upon the event."

Rose Leavitt was a beauty and heiress, but she was a strange girl for all that.

Her father had died when she was sixteen, leaving something like a million to be divided between her and two brothers.

Charles and Henry Leavitt were much older than she, and both had long been settled down as quiet, orderly businessmen. They were respectable in the fullest sense of the word, and were never known to be erratic in the slightest particular.

Rose seemed to be cast in another, entirely different mould from that in which they had been formed. At school she had been so wild that neither master or mistress could control her. She would have her own way—a peculiarity to which I am very sorry to say very many young ladies are addicted.

For the prophecies of life—I mean for those set formalities of life, which pass so far in the world of fashion—she had sovereign contempt. She hated diamonds, hated belles, hated pianos, music books, French and German "methodes," in fact she seemed disposed to live out her existence after the dictates of her own fancy or her caprices, as the reader may choose to regard it. She passed into her twenty-first year without having done anything to call the attention of the world at large to her. Her whims had only been manifested in the school-room, or at the home of her eldest brother, with whom she resided.

On my return, I hastened to Rose and desired her to send for Mr. Deede. He came and impudently stated the grounds of his claims to the hand of the heiress.

"How much will buy you off Mr. Deede?"
I asked with all appearance of deep suspicion.

"Well sir, I do not wish to prosecute the lady. If she has ceased to love me, it is not my fault; but it is not right that I should be a sufferer by her change of sentiments. She is worth, I am told, some three hundred thousand dollars. I will not be hard with her. Give me one sixth of her fortune, and I will return the letters."

"No, sir; we will not do that."

"Very well," said he, and coolly rose to depart.

"One word more, do you think your claim upon the lady is good?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Wait a moment, then, and I will convince you to the contrary."

I opened the door of an adjoining room, and Rose conducted a lady who had come from Baltimore with me, into
the apartment.

"This lady will be an excellent witness
for the defendant," I remarked.

"Hell!" shouted he, as he seized his hat and rushed from the house.

Rose threw herself on the sofa and laughed till I thought she would go into hysterics—the crazy girl!

In a word, the strange lady was Mrs.
Sampson Deede, wife of the aspirant for Rose's hand and fortune, whom the wretched man had deserted several years before. No much for my visit to Baltimore. Rose rewarded Mrs. Deede for trouble, and it was a profitable journey to her. About a year after, Charles Carpenter was made happy by receiving the hand of Rose, and I am pleased to add, she has made a very steady wife.—Boston Teas Fly.

Rose flirted with him, and Mr. Sampson Deede was as constant as a needle to the pole. Soon the flirtation assumed a more serious aspect. The elegant gentleman was ever by his side, and she never failed to smile upon him. Poor Carpenter gave up all for lost, and never intruded upon her presence.

For about three months Mr. Deede had clung to her, and then it was whispered
that he had proposed and had been accepted. Rose's brothers were in ecstasies.
They had been fearful she would throw herself away upon a poor fellow like Carpenter; and both of them declared that it was the most sensible thing they had ever known her to do; insomuch as they did not expect much from her in the matter of matrimony.

I had heard all about these things in the matter of gossip. I pitied poor Carpenter, with whom I was well acquainted;
but the wealth, positions, prospects, and magnificent expectations of Mr. Sampson Deede could not be gainsayed.

"How is Mr. Deede?" I asked, when she was seated.

"He is a knave!" replied she smartly.

I was utterly astonished at the childification of feeling.

"Read that letter Mr. Deede, and let it explain my business in a lawyer's office."

I took the document. It was from Mr.
Sampson Deede. From it I learned for the first time, that the engagement between the parties had been broken up. It appeared that she had formally dismissed him. The letter was a strictly a business document. If he had written anything more delicate; if he had remonstrated as a lover against his banishment he had done so before this was penned. In this he had aside the character of the lover, and assumed that of business, looking out sharply for his material interest. The substance of it was that the writer would prosecute her for a breach of promise, if she refused to marry him.

"What shall I do, Mr. Deede?" she asked, trying to laugh, but I could observe the trepidation that filled her mind.

"Really Rose, this is a bad business.— Why did you banish him? I conceive what a terrible misfortune it must be, to be exiled from your presence!"

"I banish him because he is a knave.
I can prove that he is a gambler—a professional gamster."

"That will not be sufficient."

"I feared not, but one thing is certain: I will never speak to him again, let the consequence be what it may."

"Have you committed yourself?"

"I have."

"Have there been any letters?"

"Yes, he has everything in black and white."

"Bad, bad, Rose."

"I knew that, or I should not have come to you with such an affair."

I questioned her closely as to all the particulars of the affair. Mr. Sampson Deede could have no better case, so far as appearance went then. It looked as if everything had been done by design; and before the interview was finished, I was satisfied that he was a scoundrel; that all he wanted was my fair client's fortune.— But Rose was completely in his power.

For two or three days I fretted over the case, and then decided to go to Baltimore myself.
Enjoining upon Rose the strictest secrecy in regard to my movements, I departed.

It would take much space to relate the incidents of my search in Baltimore, besides the difficulty of getting into the house where I intended to go.

On my return, I hastened to Rose and desired her to send for Mr. Deede. He came and impudently stated the grounds
of his claims to the hand of the heiress.

"How much will buy you off Mr. Deede?"
I asked with all appearance of deep
suspicion.

"Well sir, I do not wish to prosecute
the lady. If she has ceased to love me, it is not my fault; but it is not right that I should be a sufferer by her change of sentiments. She is worth, I am told, some three hundred thousand dollars. I will not be hard with her. Give me one sixth of her fortune, and I will return the letters."

"No, sir; we will not do that."

"Very well," said he, and coolly rose to
depart.

"One word more, do you think your
claim upon the lady is good?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Wait a moment, then, and I will convince you to the contrary."

I opened the door of an adjoining
room, and Rose conducted a lady who had come from Baltimore with me, into
the apartment.

"This lady will be an excellent witness
for the defendant," I remarked.

"Hell!" shouted he, as he seized his
hat and rushed from the house.

Rose threw herself on the sofa and
laughed till I thought she would go into
hysterics—the crazy girl!

In a word, the strange lady was Mrs.
Sampson Deede, wife of the aspirant for Rose's hand and fortune, whom the wretched
man had deserted several years before. No much for my visit to Baltimore. Rose rewarded Mrs. Deede for trouble, and it was a profitable journey to her. About a year after, Charles Carpenter was made happy by receiving the hand of Rose, and I am pleased to add, she has made a very
steady wife.—Boston Teas Fly.

Rose flirted with him, and Mr. Sampson Deede was as constant as a needle to the pole. Soon the flirtation assumed a more serious aspect. The elegant gentleman was ever by his side, and she never failed to smile upon him. Poor Carpenter
gave up all for lost, and never intruded
upon her presence.

For about three months Mr. Deede had clung to her, and then it was whispered
that he had proposed and had been accepted. Rose's brothers were in ecstasies.
They had been fearful she would throw herself away upon a poor fellow like Carpenter; and both of them declared that it was the most sensible thing they had ever
known her to do; insomuch as they did not expect much from her in the matter of matrimony.

I had heard all about these things in the matter of gossip. I pitied poor Carpenter, with whom I was well acquainted;
but the wealth, positions, prospects, and
magnificent expectations of Mr. Sampson Deede could not be gainsayed.

"How is Mr. Deede?" I asked, when she was seated.

"He is a knave!" replied she smartly.

</